Congressional contest tops interest in primary

In spite of it being a presidential election year, Town Clerk Kay Scanlon said she was advised by state officials last week that next Tuesday's primary will probably only produce a voter turnout of 30 percent. The presidential candidates are not on the ballot in the primary.

Probably the most interesting races are for Congress. Wilmington is now part of the Sixth Congressional District, which consists mainly of Essex County. The incumbent, Nick Mavroules (D-Peabody) has come under intense criticism and more recently under federal indictment for influence peddling and other alleged crimes. Four challengers have lined up, two on the Democratic ticket, two on the GOP slate.

State Rep. Barbara Hildt of Newbury is running a tough race against Mavroules. Eric Elbot, an administrator at Harvard, is taking a less combative stance.

The GOP slate has former state rep and state labor commissioner Peter Torkildsen of Danvers facing former GOP state chairman Sandy Tennant of Lynn.

Other offices on the ballot include state senator, state representative, governor's council, county commissioner and county sheriff.

Wilmington has two polling places and six precincts. Voters in Precincts 1, 2 and 5 vote at the Town Hall on Glen Road. Voters in Precincts 3, 4 and 6 cast their ballots at the Wildwood School. The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

This being a primary, voters must take a ballot of one particular party, and if they are enrolled as voters of a party, they must vote on that ballot. If they have been on the books as "unenrolled," they may take a ballot of one party or the other, but so doing will enroll them in that party. Before leaving the polls, they should then re-register as unenrolled.

Voters wishing to use absentee ballots must vote before noon on Monday, Sept. 14.

Further information is available from the town clerk's office, 658-2030.

Rep races: some hot, some not

by Larz F. Neilson
While some races for state representative are uncontested, others promise for an interesting time at the polls on Tuesday.

The Democratic primary ballot in Wilmington's Precinct 3 has a four-way race for state rep, with the winner to face incumbent Rep. Marianne Brenton (R-Burlington) at the polls in November. Precinct 3 is part of the 23rd Middlesex District, along with Burlington and Bedford.

The Democratic candidates are

Charles Teddy Ferguson, John J. Ferren, Robert C. Hogan and Virginia E. Mooney, all of Burlington.

Ferguson is a Burlington selectman and retired police chief. Hogan serves on the Burlington Board of Health. Ferren is a businessman in the advertising field. Mooney is a former Burlington selectman and former member of the Democratic State Committee.

In the 21st Middlesex District, which includes Wilmington's

Precinct 6 along with Reading and North Reading, a Democrat has recently announced a write-in campaign in the primary, hoping to secure enough votes to place his name on the November ballot. Tom Stohman of Reading is a self-employed architect. In the November election, he would face incumbent Rep. Rob Krekorian, a Reading Republican.

The quietest of all representatives races is that of the 20th Middlesex District, where incumbent Jim Miceli is unopposed.

First day

The first day of school was also the first chance for students at the Woburn Street School to meet the new principal, Kate Conway. From left, are Michael Comer, Lauren Crowley Stacey and little sister Jennifer Comer. Mrs. Rose Crowley is in the background. Ms. Conway replaces Dolores Silva, who retired in June.

Agreement close on Union contracts

by Arlene Surprenant
Wilmington's four municipal unions and the town may soon reach agreement on new contracts following "cordial but difficult" negotiations.

According to Town Manager Michael Caira, ASCME I and II and the police and firefighter units could have finalized contracts within the next six to eight weeks.

"We've reached the point of tentative agreement with at least two units. That indicates to me that we're close," said the manager.

All current one year contracts expired this summer. Caira said Tuesday the town has been in negotiations with the unions since the spring.

The manager explained he was looking for multi-year contracts rather than the one-year contracts previously negotiated. He said it has reached the point that it's hard to ask town employees to take another pay freeze. All town unions agreed to take no increase in salary last year to help the town out of a severe budget crunch situation. While the teachers' union gave up five percent of their pay raise in the last year of their contract, they did negotiate a new three year contract with salary increases. That contract is now in effect.

"Clearly, it's evident there's concern on the part of the units that they have equitable treatment in view of the teachers' contract," said Caira.

The town manager will be holding negotiation sessions again this month with each of the four unions.

Wilmington ranks 28 in quality of life

by Arlene Surprenant
Wilmington is "one of the best kept secrets in the Northeast." Just ask Town Manager Michael Caira.

Caira was referencing an article in the September issue of Boston Magazine, which ranked Wilmington 28 out of 131 cities and towns for having a good quality of life. Wilmington received a rating of seven. The top towns were Concord (18), Wellesley (15), Lexington (14), Lincoln (14), Brookline (13), and Weston (13).

The magazine based its findings on 14 categories, including a town's tax rate, commitment to schools, recreation opportunities, recycling efforts, crime rate, proximity to public transportation, population, open space, and library expenditures per capita.

The average tax rate for the communities listed was $10.81. Wilmington was one of 12 communities having the lowest tax rate with an overall rate of $8.76.

None of the communities ranked higher than Wilmington in its commitment to schools, though four — Avon, Cambridge, Weston, and Westwood — tied Wilmington with a five point rating. Commitment was based on three statistics: the average daily attendance rate, percentage of school age children attending public schools, and the per pupil expenditure figure.

Wilmington also received an "excellent" rating for its recreational facilities. Towns which were judged excellent had to have playgrounds, swimming, ice skating, tennis, and some kind of league or team for baseball, softball, basketball, hockey, or soccer.

Wilmington's library expenditures per capita is listed as $21.43, which is close to such towns as Winthrop, Woburn, Dover, Ipswich, and Chelmsford. For every ten dollars spent per capita, the magazine added a point to the quality of life index.

The percentage of protected open space in Wilmington is listed as 10.5 percent, shopping opportunities are ranked "good," and the crime rate is listed as 46. The latter is based on the number of crimes committed annually per 1,000 people. The average crime rate was 29.98.

In other categories, the median price of a house in Wilmington is $154,000, the population per square mile is 1,032, the percentage of nonwhites and Hispanics in town is 2.06 percent of the total population, and there are 17 hazardous waste sites in town. Calculated in the number of sites are underground storage tanks which are old and have cracked. Of the 131 towns and cities, only eight list no hazardous waste sites.

A pleased Caira told members of the Wilmington Finance Committee

Tuesday, "Wilmington came out as a very, very livable town." He added his main concern now was the shrinking industrial base, which indicates that next year may be the time to push for an override of Proposition 21/2 to keep Wilmington's high quality of life intact.

New bond rating for Wilmington?

by Arlene Surprenant
Town Manager Michael Caira will travel to New York Monday to meet with Moody's Investment Service to discuss a proposed bond rating for Wilmington. Moody's traditionally contacts town officials seeking financial and tax information before rating the town. Wilmington's current bond rating is A. That rating was awarded in November, 1990, said Caira, in conjunction with the issuance of four million dollars in bonds.

Caira expressed hope that Wilmington can maintain its present rating. He told the Town

Crier Wilmington seemed in better financial shape in the past few years and has met its obligation of a $34 million budget without borrowing in the past 18 months. In addition, there have been no town layoffs and municipal employees had agreed to a freeze in pay, all of which bodes well for the town despite a few "negatives."

"I think they ought to judge us on our ability to manage," Caira said. He added he will report back to the board of selectmen on the outcome of the town's presentation and the review by the rating firm.

Finance committee questions school accounts

by Arlene Surprenant
Members of the Wilmington Finance Committee are asking to meet with the chairman or other representative of the local school committee at their October meeting to learn more about school financial accounts. The account under the most scrutiny at Tuesday's fincom meeting was the Student Activities Fund.

Fincom members were reviewing several town and school accounts with Town Manager Michael Caira, as well as two recent grants awarded to the town, when the issue came up. Walter Kaminski questioned if funds in the activities account are viewed as private or public funds. Dick Duggan maintained the town treasurer should have control over that account.

"I think it really, really is town money," he said.

Caira explained while the Athletic Revolving Account is administered through the town, the activities fund is not. He added a lot of the money in the latter goes toward student scholarships and the funds are overseen by high school Principal Paul Fleming.

"I don't think there's anything inappropriate being done with those funds," said the manager.

Chairman Tom Casey agreed but said the town should oversee the money and his board should know how the money functions and the process of collecting and spending the funds. Caira offered to contact the school committee and ask one of the members to visit the board to explain the various school accounts. Kaminski also brought up funds raised by the various school PACs (Parent Advisory Committee). While Caira maintained PACs function as private organizations, Kaminski said he was told the PACs were established by state law and, as such, could be considered part of town government. He admitted, however, this was a "grey area" for him.

Also under discussion during the night was the $630,000 Small Cities Grant and a $287,200 education grant slated for Wilmington. The Small Cities Grant will fund home renovations and the creation of accessory apartments, primarily in the Silver Lake area, down payment assistance for first time homebuyers, and an employment and job training component. Caira explained the town will have "some flexibility" with the one-time grant, which will also fund three staff people. The money will be forthcoming after December and will be available for a 15 month period, according to the manager.

The one-time education grant will go directly to the school department, said Caira. Wilmington received the grant mainly because the school department has been cut at the same level as the municipal government, he added. At a recent school board meeting, the committee decided to use the money to restore teachers and some bus service despite the fact that jobs will again be threatened when the grant runs out. Some fincom members argued the money would be better spent on books or capital items.

"The money would theoretically be wasted at the end of the year. I'm sad to hear you say this is how the money will be spent," Casey told Caira.

"The plain and simple truth is they need new books. (But) the school committee is more interested in saving teachers, period," said Kaminski.

Steve Leet pointed out that the teachers themselves, when surveyed, said there was a need for more books and other supplies.

Shawsheen Tech opens with revised curriculum

Shawsheen Tech opened Wednesday to more than 1000 students. Teachers have been working this summer on the development of integrated curriculum between academic and laboratory areas, and several teachers updated their computer skills in anticipation of added units of instruction in computer use, controls, and repair.

Students will see only one new face - that of Roger Bourgeois of Lynn, who will be a carpentry instructor. Bourgeois has 10 years experience as a vocational instructor, most recently at Lynn Vocational High School, in addition to several years in industry.

"We look forward to bringing Roger's experience in construction and teaching to Shawsheen," said Anthony R. Bazzinotti, director of vocational training programs. "We feel confident he will be a major asset to our construction cluster."

Integrated curriculum

Integration of academic and vocational curriculum is not a new idea, notes Robert Cunningham, assistant superintendent. "By the nature of what we do, we have always integrated vocational instruction and academic instruction," Cunningham said, referring to the structure at Shawsheen that combines classroom learning and hands on experience to accommodate and enhance a variety of learning styles. This summer, however, academic and vocational instructors worked together to develop more formal programs to be introduced over the next 1-2 years. Cunningham gave as examples instruction in anatomy for health students through an academic science course, rather than the vocational program; and bringing math teachers into technical areas such as carpentry and plumbing to teach math applications specific to their field. Integration of curriculum is a hot topic on the educational scene now, Cunningham added. He said he is encouraged that "this integration drive has its basis in a well founded learning principle, that people learn best through multi-channelled information," something that has been part of the Shawsheen style for sometime. He said the combination of classroom instruction and laboratories with up to date, real world equipment best addresses learning styles of individuals. "We offer opportunities not available in a traditional high school setting," he said.

Equipment, computers and sports

Software has been added to the mainframe computer to make programs such as Word-Perfect and

Lotus 1-2-3 previously available only on personal computers accessible to more students; students in graphic arts will have additional exposure to desktop publishing and other applications on Macintosh computers; ACR students will have more instruction in computer use and controls; electrical students will add a unit on computer repair. Bazzinotti said several departments will teach computer techniques for inventory control and entrepreneurship "to better prepare students to start their own businesses."

Middlesex County race rolls on

by Kevin John Sowyrda

With high profile races for both Congress and state legislative seats, the Middlesex County political scene has been largely ignored this primary season, which may be just what the incumbents had been hoping for.

Voters in Tewksbury and Wilmington have ample reason to pay attention, considering that both communities pay well over $1 million annually in county assessments.

The most crowded field of candidates is for the two seats on the Middlesex County Commission. Incumbents Edward J. Kennedy of Lowell and Thomas J. Larkin of Bedford are being challenged by three other Democrats in the Primary, including Selectman Dennis Ready of Chelmsford. The other opponents are Leonard H. Golden of Stow and Albert J. Onessimo of Somerville, a perennial county office candidate.

Many consider Larkin the weakest incumbent. The Bedford Democrat was defeated in an upset in 1990 by political neophyte and Republican Donna Lambert, when he lost his seat as register of probate.

Hoping to join Lambert and increase the G.O.P. ranks in county government are three challengers running on the Republican side. Like the Democratic Primary, the top two vote getters will appear on the November ballot.

The Republican commissioner candidates are Anthony F. Ranieri of Everett, James P. Regan of Newton and Edward L. Weinberg of Framingham.

Sheriff John P. McGonigle is unopposed in his Democratic Primary but three Republicans are fighting for the chance to meet the incumbent in the November 3 general election. They are Gary Buxton of Holliston, Michael Dever of Woburn and Vincent Dixon of Cambridge.

Educational reform meeting Sept. 17

Representative Marianne Brenton (R-Burlington) has announced a "town meeting" on education reform on September 17 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Louise Davy Trahan Elementary School in Tewksbury. The meeting is the last step of the 18 month study of reform for the Commonwealth's primary and secondary education system.

Representative Brenton encourages all parents, teachers, administrators, business leaders, and those concerned with education to attend. The forum will be an opportunity for a public discussion of the formula for the successful reform on the local level. Several questions that will be raised are: "What makes your schools work?", "What problems exist in your schools?", and "What role can the state play in resolving those problems and improving education at the local level?"

Members of the education committee confirmed that comprehensive education reform legislation will be completed by this fall and will reflect a solid, progressive program for academic study and skilled training for the 1990s and beyond. "The key to successful reform is centered in the classroom. The forum is an opportunity to bring teachers, parents, administrators and the general public together to promote and implement changes in our schools. This type of broad based support from the community will be a meaningful step in securing the economic stability and future of education for our children," stated Brenton.

BUSINESS ENTERTAINING AT HOME

Having the client home to dinner? Many business people find it more gracious than going to a restaurant and often less expensive, too. It's still deductible, as long as you keep the necessary records.

Remember that only 80 percent of business entertainment is tax-deductible. The self-employed, Schedule-C taxpayer can deduct the entire 80 percent; for most employees, though, this is a miscellaneous unreimbursed business expense with a floor of two percent of adjusted gross income. Having more frequent parties is more tax-efficient.

Keep receipts of all expenses over $25, your invitation and guest list, and notes on the event's business purpose. Some filers have even found it helpful to keep such trivia as wine labels and recipes to document the expenses.

Keep in mind that the IRS can disallow expenses they consider too lavish. And even if you invite clients to your daughter's wedding, you can't write off the party.

What's deductible, what's not? Ask the tax people at Polls open 7 a.m.

Tewksbury Town Clerk Elizabeth Carey has informed voters that the polls will open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m. Tuesday, September 15. Carey reminds voters that the polling places are located in school buildings and classes will be in progress in the morning.

There will be an early dismissal for all schools Tuesday, Sept. 15. To prevent disruption of the high school students' lunch time, voters who vote at the High School (Precinct 1-1A) will vote in the gymnasium. Carey suggests that those who have flexible schedules may find it easier to cast their ballots at the times that do not conflict with the school bus schedule.

If your employment or plans prevent any flexibility, you may want to allow a few extra minutes because of the arrival and departure of students and the school buses entering and leaving the school parking lots at various times during the morning.

Wetlands enforcement: state stepping in

Attorney General, Scott Harshbarger and the Mass. Assoc. of Conservation Commissions (MACC) recently announced the implementation of their new joint wetlands enforcement project. The project establishes a procedure whereby municipal Conservation Commissions, which administer and enforce the state Wetlands Protection Act, may refer wetlands cases to the Attorney General's Office for enforcement.

The enforcement project involves the distribution of referral forms to the Conservation Commission in each of the Commonwealth's cities and towns, together with a description of the kinds of wetland enforcement cases that are considered appropriate for referral.

Wetlands cases that are most likely to be accepted for enforcement, either criminal or civil, include those cases where particularly large or sensitive wetland resources areas are affected or where a repeat offender who is flagrantly violating the Wetlands Protection Act is involved. A case screener at MACC will review referrals and refer appropriate cases to the Attorney General's Office for assessment and possible prosecution.

"This kind of joint project brings enforcement resources to bear in an area of crucial environmental concern," said Attorney General Harshbarger. "We are pleased with this additional opportunity to have a significant impact in terms of the environmentally critical area that the Commonwealth's wetlands resources constitute."

MACC board member and environmental attorney Gregor I. McGregor, of McGregor & Shea in Boston, added, "The public expects close cooperation between state and local enforcement agencies and this project is a perfect example. Some wetland violations deserved quick attention at the highest levels for aggressive enforcement." McGregor and Executive Director Dr. Sally Zielinski led MACC's efforts in the development of referral standards and procedures.

Both the Attorney General's Office and MACC are emphasizing to local Conservation Commissions that case referral to the Attorney General's Office is not intended to replace the other options available to Conservation Commissions for enforcement of the state's wetlands protection law. The project is intended to supplement other enforcement options to increase compliance, statewide, with the requirements of the Wetlands Protection Act.

by Kevin John Sowyrda

G.O.P. Congressional hopeful Peter Torkildsen has a credibility problem that his opponent, Sandy Tennant, is effectively exploiting. Torkildsen's Achilles heel is his flip-flop on the abortion issue. Like most flip-flops, you never effectively explain it or avoid the opposition criticism that you're just another politician swaying in the winds of daily polls. These polls rule the philosophies of the modern American candidate, a pre-packaged product similar in nature to those Kraft packages of cheese which conveniently offer each tasty slice individually wrapped in very transparent cellophane.

In a year when people are searching for politicians who aren't so obvious, Torkildsen has a gaping political wound which is self-inflicted.

At the Republican debate between the Sixth District congressional hopefuls last Thursday night in Wilmington, Torkildsen was consistent in his defense, attributing the change of heart to the Irish government.

The Irish government?

There in Blamey a woman was forbade to leave the country for an abortion, and apparently it was just too much for the Viking (as they used to call him at the State House). Quicker than you could say Harris, Gallup or CNN poll, the ardent pro-life Torkildsen was on record as the ardent pro-choice Torkildsen.

The former commissioner of labor and state representative from Danvers is finally right. The problem is he's wrong at the same time. People are just too suspicious about shifts on such deep rooted issues, especially when the shift is taken by someone so recently on the polar opposite side of the debate.

Torkildsen has some bright ideas and is a hard working candidate. In many ways he mirrors the district he wants to represent. Watching him and Sandy Tennant at last week's debate was a vivid contrast. Torkildsen and his staff wore the Filene's Basement specials, while Tennant had his usual precocious Newbury Street, pleated-pants suit and a phalanx of matching aides armed with mobile phones, an infamous Tennant trade-mark.

But Torkildsen has alienated the same socially conservative Republicans he effectively tapped in 1990 when he handily won the Republican Party Convention endorsement for lieutenant governor. However, in this race the conservatives aren't holding Torkildsen signs and they're not writing him checks. The progressives were never with him.

Tennant is not without his own liabilities. His controversial tenure as executive director of the state G.O.P. has earned him some powerful enemies. He's also sweated under the spotlight for his association with a Republican fundraising group now under state investigation. Torkildsen's staff, denying they've considered any abortion issue polling data, does reference one showing Tennant with a high negative rating among likely Republican primary voters.

Nonetheless, this race could be close next week.

If the winner is Tennant, he won it on the abortion issue.

Briefly in Politics . . . Special Pre-Primary Edition

Tewksbury deserves an exciting Primary ballot. This small Lowell suburb is a hotbed of controversy where voters take their politics seriously and follow it like the good sport it is. If people in Tewksbury aren't bemoaning the Red Sox their decrying — sometimes praising — the candidate of the day whose reaching out for the last minute votes.

This is the last minute. Candidates can now count the hours to the Primary and an active congressional and state senate race in Tewksbury, on both sides of the aisle for a change, should bring local voters to the polls in droves next week.

The race for Congress in the new Merrimack Valley District is a typical microcosm of the national House cleaning trend. Chet Atkins, re-elected last time around by a razor-thin margin, won't be so lucky next week. With negatives almost as high as his pile of bounced checks, the Concord Democrat is battling seasoned politico Marty Meehan, former first assistant district attorney for Middlesex County.

Atkins brings to mind Winston Churchill's quote, "Democracy is the worst form of government . . ." I questioned Atkins recently on the Wang Labs bankruptcy and he jumped to correct me. "It's not a bankruptcy. You have to understand that. It's a RESTRUCTURING!"

Tell that to the 5,000 men and women out of work, Chet.

Also, Atkins' recent ad campaign is hypocritical. He's bashing Meehan for being too negative, yet in 1990 Atkins accused his opponent of everything from anti-semitism to being a member of a cult.

Meehan will carry Tewksbury easily. He's been endorsed by Jay Gaffney, Bill Hurton, Tom Conlon, Kevin Sullivan, Richard "Pete" Hanson, Rick O'Neill and others. District wide, just the fact that there is but one choice for all the anti-Atkins voters to migrate to should do it for Meehan.

Maybe that justifies Churchill's full quotation. "Democracy is the worst form of government . . . except for all the rest."

On the Republican side, Mike Conway and Paul Cronin have proved that the G.O.P. can finally field credible candidates for Congress. Their styles are what separate them more than the issues of the day. Cronin is the sedate candidate, remiss to get "down and dirty," while Conway is the pit-bull contender, sort of our own Newt Gingrich Republican who relishes political combat and yearns to change the whole government process; throw the baby out with the bath water, PLEASE!

Conway should win Tewksbury and has the support of local G.O.P. leader Greg Reynolds. District wide, it's a toss-up with a Republican Primary turnout sure to be far below numbers cast on the other side of the ballot. The man who wins this is the man who gets his vote out.

The Wilmington Congressional race will capture attention nationally as Nick Mavroules (D) fights for his political life. Pundits have already recognized that Wilmington and the other three new communities added to the district, including Burlington and Bedford, will play a key role in deciding the future of the powerful member of the House Armed Services Committee.

Though Mavroules has two Democratic Primary opponents, only one, State Rep. Barbara Hildt, has achieved recognition as a legitimate opponent positioned to defeat the incumbent, now under indictment for racketeering and influence peddling. Hildt needs a large Primary turnout to win, and she'll get it. There's a plethora of Democratic Primary races throughout the Sixth District communities and the congressional race itself has been the most intriguing in Massachusetts, captivating voter attention even during the traditionally non-political summertime.

A political barometer to consider election night is the vote in Sixth District Mavroules stong-holds like Lynn and Salem. If the congressman does not win there by a very wide margin, it's obvious that the corruption charges have taken their toll and it's bye, bye time for Nick, or as they call him in Peabody Center, "Our Dear Nicky."

John Moffit, a big-bucks political consultant based in Wilmington and former chief secretary to Governor William F. Weld, has been retained by the Committee Against Unfair Taxes to beat a referendum question on the November 3 ballot to increase the cigarette tax by 25 cents per pack. But don't let the name fool you. The Boston Globe reported the Committee Against Unfair Taxes is a front for tobacco companies which have pumped over $4,000,000 into their coffers. The pro-cigarette-tax side is the Massachusetts Coalition for a Healthy Future, which wants to discourage cigarette smoking.

Hospital problems highlighted by Wednesday's fire

by Bill Conlon

Residents of Tewksbury generally agreed with the town's move to seek an injunction and halt the transfer of Danvers' hospital mental patients to Tewksbury. The judge, however, disagreed.

It isn't that people in Tewksbury are uncaring -- just the opposite. But the arguments of the police and fire chiefs made sense during the court discussions. Fire Chief Tom Ryan said the hospital hadn't installed sprinklers, as required by town by-law, and Police Chief John Mackey did not and does not like the security arrangements for potentially dangerous mental patients being housed on the hill.

Although the injunction was refused in court and the new patients were transferred, the problems remain. Both chiefs were given a textbook example of their arguments last Wednesday night, when a small fire forced evacuation of the fourth and fifth floors of the mental health wing at Tewksbury Hospital.

The fire started when one of the patients apparently set a pile of clothes on fire. The blaze spread to a wooden cabinet and drapes in the room, and dense smoke forced evacuation of the entire wing. Both Mackey and Ryan showed up at the scene, while their troops were working to contain the problem.

Ryan was furious, and rightly so. Sprinklers would have halted the blaze in seconds, he said. Also, the cabinet containing the fire hose and extinguisher in that wing was locked, and had to be pried open because the key wouldn't fit the lock. All the patient's rooms on the floor were locked, and each room had to be unlocked to get the patients out. Without sprinklers, the hospital is still a disaster waiting to happen.

Also, Tewksbury had to call in Billerica's ladder truck, because there is not enough manpower in the Tewksbury Department on that unit to drive the town's ladder truck, which was purchased for the express purpose of battling fires at the hospital. Without the manpower, the truck sits. Engines were on the scene from both Billerica and Wilmington, with other towns providing coverage for Tewksbury.

Mackey was upset at the security procedures for the patients, and rightly so. Patients evacuated from the secured wing were led away to the dining hall, in an adjacent building. One group of patients came back from the dining hall shepherded by hospital staffers, but there was another group of five men -- apparently patients -- who walked up to the building unescorted. Were they mental patients? Nobody seemed to know. When asked, one hospital employee said the way staffers tell the difference between patients and employees is that staff members of the hospital usually carry keys. Anyone carrying keys is assumed to be a hospital employee. Terrific.

One of the doctors bought pizza for the patients before they were taken back, to keep them calm. Also, a "medication cart" was taken to the dining hall, to sedate the more unruly patients before the move was undertaken.

Did any of the patients escape during the transfer between the hospital and the dining hall, or take a brief trip off the grounds? It was impossible to tell. It was dark, with trees and buildings nearby offering plenty of shadows to anyone intent upon escape. Police at the scene, both town and state police, were aghast at the lack of security. A blind man could have escaped from the hospital that night, if he tried.

Two Tewksbury police officers were called in from their day off to provide security, and they were rewarded with "time owed" in return. Mackey said the two officers, Westaway and LaFortune, kept the town from having only three cops on the street on a busy summer night. Overtime is a thing of the past for the police and fire departments.

The town, which is appealing to the courts and still trying for an injunction against Tewksbury Hospital, was given plenty of good reasons to argue for the injunction on Wednesday night. Locked fire cabinets without keys, weak security for patients, no sprinklers in the building -- an interesting night all around.

Add to that the security concerns for the John W. Wynn Middle School (even if the school committee prefers to discuss the safety of children in secret), trash collection and other issues and the Tewksbury Hospital is rapidly becoming a problem to the town.

Oh, and keep in mind that Wednesday night's fire was small, and there were no injuries. The next hospital fire might be far worse.

The Little League Orioles ended the season as American Major League champs.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

I hope the Wilmington voters enjoyed our "Evening of Debate" last Thursday between Republican Congressional candidates Peter Torkildsen and Sandy Tennant. The idea behind the debate was to make more information available to the public in the new 6th district before going to the polls on September 15.

Setting up the debate in Wilmington took the cooperation and help of many people. I would like to first of all thank Philip Meriam and his staff at the Wilmington Memorial Library for their assistance in procuring and setting up the upstairs conference room for the debate. I would also like to thank Sam Schauerman and the crew from WCTV who produced and televised the event live to the households in Wilmington. A special thanks goes to Roger Lessard and his assistants from the Public Buildings Dept. for putting together a last minute sound system so all in the room could hear.

Much appreciation goes to members of the press Elizabeth Banks, Larz F. Neilson, Robert Turos and Robert Doolan for participating in the debate, as well as to moderator Marianne Brenton.

Last but not least, I would like to thank the voters who attended the debate live at the library or tuned in on their sets at home.

Dear Larz:

Campaign promises. Environmental disasters. War and starvation. So many things that the average citizen has little power to control or change.

But there is a way that residents of Wilmington and other towns in Massachusetts are making a difference - in their lives, in the health of their places of employment, in their communities: WellWorks. And in these times of world unrest and bad news, a positive change is underway as a result of this program.

Based at the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, WellWorks is a federally-funded program underway at 12 Massachusetts worksites that is empowering employees and their companies to take control of their health, their lifestyles and their working conditions to make a change for the better. To paraphrase a famous saying, 'one small step for individual health, one giant step for the community's health.'

Employees at Textron Defense Systems in Wilmington, in your readership area, are participating in the WellWorks program, addressing important issues such as workplace safety, including hazardous materials; a healthy lifestyle, including diet, smoking cessation and exercise programs; home safety; and issues about the environment. WellWorks' success stories are triumphant in their contributions to a safer, healthier world, whether it be in one building or family, or in an entire corporation or community.

I have enclosed a fact sheet about the WellWorks program and some of the highlights of its successes at Textron Defense Systems. I encourage you to consider writing an article about the positive changes taking place in the lives of some of your readers as a result of this program. For once, the average citizen does have the power to make change.

Sincerely,
Hallie Baron

The newspapers say that Nick Mavroules is fighting the political opponent of his life. Her name is...

Barbara Hildt

* Barbara Hildt is pro-choice, pro-children and pro-family. She has long fought for a woman's right to choose. Not only is Nick Mavroules anti-choice, but he also voted for President Bush's Gag Rule which even denies a woman basic medical information concerning her right to choose.

* Barbara Hildt is pro-jobs. Not just the jobs that we have today, but jobs that we need for the future. That's why she is calling for new investment in job training, in conversion aid and in the educational programs which will get our workers and industry on top of global competition.

* Barbara Hildt has won awards for her outstanding role as an advocate for children and the elderly. She stands up when it counts, which is how she has earned her reputation as a fighter who doesn't quit, as a legislator of independent mind who has never shied away from taking tough votes.

* Barbara Hildt understands that this election is about the future, for us and our children.

* Barbara Hildt knows that earning your vote comes down to trust. Nobody has ever questioned Barbara Hildt's integrity.

Help for those driving over 55 — on the odometer, not the speedometer

How does the aging process affect your driving ability? What situations are most endangered by the slowed reaction times that accompany aging? Why do drivers age 55 and over have more accidents per mile driving than drivers aged 30 to 54?

You can get the answers to these questions and improve your driving skills by attending a 55 Alive/Mature Driving Course on October 8 and 9, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day. Offered by New England Memorial Hospital as a community service, the course includes eight hours of classroom instruction that refine existing skills and develop safe, defensive driving techniques. It also reviews how to handle adverse driving conditions and traffic hazards, and the effects of aging and medications on driving.

The 55/Alive driving course is produced by the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) and has been conducted throughout the country with great success. AARP-trained volunteer instructors, age 50 and older, provide the course instruction using proven peer teaching methods. The materials and learning process are geared toward mature adults with ample opportunity for participation.

55/Alive results in safer roads for everyone. Older drivers benefit from increased confidence on the road, better driving records, and continuing mobile, independent lifestyle for additional years.

The course is $8 and includes a student workbook and a Massachusetts Department of Motor Vehicle Driver's Manual. To register call (617) 979-7057.

Miceli votes to override veto of education aid

In recent legislative action Representative James R. Miceli and his House colleagues voted to override the Governor's veto of the per-student education aid. Keeping this state budget item intact will enable a school system to receive $100 per student enrolled.

The Legislature's swift response in overriding the veto enable $85 million of crucial education aid to go out to the Commonwealth's communities in time for the upcoming school year. Due to Rep. Miceli's action Wilmington will be receiving $287,000 while Tewksbury's portion will be $386,000.

BRING OUT THE STAR IN YOU!

I knew it was a great hospital, not by the amount of time I spent there, but by the amount of time I didn't.

Joan Maglio came to New England Memorial Hospital to undergo a gynecological procedure that would treat her barely detectable but dangerous precancerous lesion. She was surprised and pleased at how quickly she was able to leave the hospital and return home.

While Joan's procedure was major, it was not surgery in the conventional sense of the word. Her hysterectomy was done vaginally with the aid of advanced laparoscopic techniques. Dr. Daniel Feinn, Joan's skilled gynecological surgeon, successfully performed the exacting procedure with no large incisions, no post-operative complications, and little, if any, pain. Joan was up and around in two days, and back to herself in no time.

Joan Maglio speaks very highly of the excellent treatment she received from the caring, concerned staff at New England Memorial Hospital. But, thanks to Dr. Feinn, she didn't have much time to get used to it.

National Health Week at Blaire House

Every September, Blaire House Adult Day Health Program, celebrates a special week declared, "National Adult Day Health Week." This year is no exception. Just what is Adult Day Health? It is a supervised program for the elderly or special needs adults, which provides health monitoring and care; social, recreational, and rehabilitative therapies, and most importantly, a good time. It enables an individual to remain in his/her home, provides respite and support to the family, and is a viable alternative to institutionalization.

At Blaire House the week will begin with our annual bake sale, a portion of the proceeds going to Alzheimer's Disease Research. Tuesday, September 22, we will be holding our annual open house. It will take place from 7:30 to 8:30 a.m. It is free and open to all and a complimentary continental breakfast will be served. We invite everyone to attend, ask questions, and tour our facility.

Wednesday will begin with an intergenerational program. The kids from Children's World Learning Center in Tewksbury, will be going to Blaire House where the participants of the day health program will present them with a friendship quilt. This quilt reflects the past two years, and the friends that both groups have made.

Friday will end the week with a time capsule explosion. The participants will open a time capsule sealed for the past five years. They will reflect on the items inside the capsule, then they will replace the items with a video that they have compiled describing Blaire House Adult Day health in the year 1992. They will then re-seal the capsule for the next five years, so future participants can see Blaire House as it was.

Blaire House is located at 10 Erlin Terrace, Tewksbury. If you wish to share in our celebration of National Adult Day Health Week or would like information, contact Kim DuBrow at 851-3121.

Conservation commission halts wetlands extensions

At its public meeting on September 2, 1992, the Wilmington Conservation Commission voted to no longer grant extensions to expired Orders of Conditions. Orders of Conditions are permits issued by the Commission for work in or near wetlands. An Order of Conditions is typically valid for a period of three years from its date of issuance.

According to the Massachusetts Wetlands Protection Act Regulations (310 CMR 10.05 (8)), the issuing authority may extend an Order for one or more periods of up to three years each. The request for the extension, however, must be made at least 30 days prior to the expiration of the Order.

This notice is given so that applicants who have been issued Orders may check to ensure that they do not miss their deadlines for requests for extensions. This change in policy is to ensure compliance with the State Regulations. Please contact the Conservation Office at 121 Glen Road, Wilmington, MA 01887, 658-8238 if you have any questions regarding this matter.

Unenrolled can vote

Tewksbury Town Clerk Elizabeth Carey mentioned that many inquiries have been directed to her office regarding whether an unenrolled voter can vote in the Primary.

The answer is yes!

If you are a registered voter and you are not enrolled in any political party you may still vote in the Primary. The procedure is:

You ask for the political party ballot you prefer; Democratic Party Ballot, Republican Party Ballot, or an Independent Voter Party Ballot. These are the three official political parties in Massachusetts. To prevent confusion, registered voters who did not select a political party, (previously called independents) are now called "unenrolled voters" or "no political party designation." When you request a political party ballot you automatically become listed as a member of that political party.

After you cast your ballot in the ballot box you may fill out and sign a "change of party enrollment card" and they you will be returned to your unenrolled status.

The change of party enrollment cards will be available at all precincts. The State Primary is Tuesday, September 15. The polls open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.

Arts council accepting scholarship applications

The Wilmington Council for the Arts has announced that new applications for the awarding of scholarships and grants are now available with an October 15 deadline. The council is able to fund artists, students and cultural organizations through monies allotted by the Mass. Cultural Council (formerly the Massachusetts Arts Lottery). Performing Arts Students Series (PASS) applications are also now available. These applications must be typewritten and five copies are to be submitted. PASS applications may be obtained by teachers at their school offices. Since its inception in 1986, over 350,000 school children in Mass have attended music, dance and theater performances through the PASS program. PASS offers all Mass. students, grades K-12 in public, private and parochial schools an opportunity to attend performing arts events. The participating organizations are listed in a roster available at school offices. The price of the ticket must not exceed $5. Because all funding has of necessity now been cut drastically, applicants should be aware of the importance of submitting fully and correctly filled out applications by the Thursday, October 15 deadline. All others will not be accepted. The forms may be picked up at either the town hall or the Memorial Library. Please submit your applications to the Wilmington Council for the Arts, Town Hall, Glen Road. For more information call Liz White at 658-2042.

Drapery Boutique, 3 Church Street, Wilmington • (508) 657-8477

It's rare to find personal service anymore. It is also rare to find a company that will tailor make its product to suit a budget, a need or both.

The Drapery Boutique on Church Street, Wilmington offers all of these things at competitive prices. But then, when you make your own products and enjoy the work, it comes naturally.

"My mother started making draperies," explained Ada Peters, we grew up in this business." The boutique offers custom made products at reasonable prices. Ada is proud of that fact. "When people come into the store we have photos they can look at," said Ada. We find out whether they want the drapes for privacy or to keep out the sun." She said that even if the customer just wanted attractive drapes, the Drapery Boutique could accommodate any need. "That's the beauty of custom," said Ada.

"We make everything in the workroom here, she explained, we don't just sell the product, we oversee its production. We know if a particular shade goes with customer needs." With the "Thrifty Customer Plan" offered by the store even a tight budget can be accommodated. The plan allows the consumer to buy ready-made drapes that are still hand-made.

The Drapery Boutique and its personable staff will fit and any window and any wallet.

T'was the night before Christmas and all through the town. Not an office was working, they all were shut down. It was last year on Christmas Eve when they got a call from a prominent businessman in town. All the children and grand children were visiting and he wanted to surprise them with a trip to Disney World. Could it be arranged? For 22 people? The answer was - Yes! The surprise was a great success and everyone had a wonderful time. The arrangements, although last minute, were all perfect!

That's the difference - the personal service. It's something you can't expect from the big companies in Boston. The friendly staff of A.A.J is able to provide all the services you need and remember your name. When you see an ad on TV for one of those tours through a big company, and you might like to know about it, but don't want the pressure, the trip to Boston and the feeling you're a just a number, call A.A.J Travel in Wilmington. They can book the tour or special deal exactly as the Boston firm can or even customize their trip to your desires.

A.A.J has videos on many of the popular cruises and destinations. Take advantage of the convenience of their Wilmington office to see where you're going!

Most people are aware that they pay no more for tickets when they book through a travel agent but did you know that you can save money by knowing in advance what to do and where to go on your vacation. Experience is very important. A.A.J has been in business in Wilmington since 1981. They've got someone on staff who has been where you would like to go (almost the entire world).

Miceli hosts Cub Scouts on Beacon Hill

Representative James R. Miceli (D-Tewksbury/ Wilmington) recently hosted Tewksbury Cub Scout Pack 47 at the State House.

The scouts escorted by Pack leaders Donna Ray and Linda Aghjayan visited the State House to complete a requirement for the Scouts' Citizen Badge. One of the requirements for the badge is to visit a leader in the community. The Scouts chose Representative Miceli and were led through the process of how a bill becomes a law by visiting the steps that a bill makes before becoming law.

Some of the other requirements for the Badge are learning the meaning of the Pledge of Allegiance and the Star Spangled Banner, reporting on a famous American, describing what it means to be a citizen, and learning how to care for the American flag.

Rotary is an association of some

26,000 Rotary Clubs, with more than 1.1 million business and professional leaders, united worldwide, which provides humanitarian service, encourages high ethical standards in all vocations and helps build good will and peace throughout the world. Non-political non-governmental and non-sectarian, Rotary's motto is "Service Above Self."

For more information and/or applications contact your local Rotary Club president or Group Study Exchange Committee Chairman, Leslie P. Curtis, 11 Smith Road, Rockport, Massachusetts 01966 (508-546-0979).

ARE YOU PROTECTED?

by Edward H. Wilkens

EMPLOYEE DISHONESTY

QUESTION: How can a business owner be protected from the threat of dishonest employees?

ANSWER: Whether theft, fraud, embezzlement or forgery, employee dishonesty is a growing problem. Almost 350,000 persons are arrested each year for crimes against employers. The motives are varied, ranging from revenge, supporting gambling habits, drugs or just plain greed.

Because of this problem, fidelity bonding is a necessary part of your business coverage. Sometimes called "Honesty Insurance," fidelity bonds reimburse the business owner for losses caused by employee dishonesty up to the amount stated on the bond.

NO BUSINESS is immune to employee dishonesty. Fidelity Bonding is the answer.

Tewksbury Golden Age

by Ernie Lorenz

Well, August 31 has passed us by and a third of those who placed deposits for the Paramount trip have not paid the remaining balance. Now I don't wear a fedora hat, carry a violin case, drive a large black sedan, not do I run a collection agency, or own stock in the telephone company. When it comes time to leave you can wave goodbye to us who are going, Sept. 15 is the absolute deadline for final payment.

Ah, yes Atlantic City, October 4-6 not much time here, reservation forms are available at the Senior Center, 175 Chandler St., because of the close date full payment should be made with their reservation form, however a deposit of $50 with form and final payment Sept. 28 can be made. This trip will be limited to 44 people.

Now for some good news, George O'Connell is at the home of his daughter for the final leg of rehabilitation, iron man George as we like to call him should be an inspiration to us all; when you're down, you're never out. Unfortunately sad or distressing news follows the good, it's with a heavy heart I announce the death of a brother Sam Maestri, may God speed your delivery unto him leaving sorrow, pain and strife far behind.

At this time I would like to remind the older members as well as informing the new about the Town of Tewksbury medical bus although not exclusively for senior citizens it surely is God sent. Two handsome drivers by the names of George and Frank certainly favorites with the ladies have been known on occasion to pick up a gent or two. Remember, with no other dependable transportation in town this could be considered more right than privilege, so call 508-640-4488 between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. giving as much notice as possible to pickup date if any problems or hassle occurs call your selectman.

Happy anniversary to Frank and Jeanette Perry and Robert and Eleanor Jones.

backyard gardening

by Hugh Wiberg
With Labor Day behind us, there is a natural inclination to begin winding up another gardening season.

If we have not been faithful to stay ahead of the weeds, we will be even more willing to pack it in. Nothing dampens our enthusiasm faster than a weed choked flower or vegetable garden.

We will not look back on the summer of '92 with fond remembrances, related to our gardens. The poor weather conditions, perhaps caused in part by a volcanic eruption on the other side of the earth, foreordained a lot of frustration this year. We can only shrug it off, and assume that next year will be better.

Sharing some recent exchanges with area gardeners, let's begin with a note from E.L. of Tewksbury who writes, "Although our garden in general was sub par this year (in part due to a family of woodchucks who we were unable to outwit) we did have good luck with butternut squash. Question: When does one know that a butternut squash is ready to eat?"

The easiest way to judge the readiness of winter squash is to simply go by the calendar. In my experience, September 10 is about the right time to begin harvesting winter squash. If you peel and cut a butternut now and it has a very pale flesh color, wait a week or 10 days, and try again. Obviously, the maturity date of any vegetable depends directly on how early or late we made the initial planting.

L.M. of Wilmington called the other evening to ask for an organic means (if possible) of preventing mice damage to the bottoms of her sugar pumpkins. My suggestion is to dust around the lower quarter of the pumpkins with powdered rotenone. Do this weekly, and immediately after a moderate rain. I have done this with giant pumpkins over the last dozen years and have cut rodent damage to near zero.

Another Wilmington reader asks if it is really all that important to remove and destroy garden refuse in the early fall, as opposed to leaving that chore for the following spring. My response was that it is extremely important to remove completely (or burn) leftover plant residue in September or early October. If you don't, you run the risk of many harmful insects wintering over in vines and stalks and in the soil. Result? Lots of problems next year. If you saw any evidence of diseases on your plants, even if you have used a fungicide on them, it is doubly important to clear the area thoroughly within the next four weeks.

A North Tewksbury gardener called to ask if the unusually high number of raccoons in her neighborhood is any cause for concern now, or next year. My response is that unless you are growing sweet corn, you probably will not be bothered much by the coons. It is a good idea to avoid any contact with raccoons of course, since there are increasing reports of rabid individuals (raccoons that is, not gardeners) this year in Massachusetts. In the 30 years I have lived in Wilmington, the only problems I had with coons have been an occasional visitor who developed a liking for peaches or, where reachable, sunflower seeds.

A few thoughts and suggestions on Mass. Agricultural Fairs will be shared in next week's column.

Government officials host symposium

Local and state officials and planning organizations have joined forces to sponsor a symposium on Regionalization of Municipal Government for town officials September 24, starting at 5:30 p.m. With declining local revenues, communities are seeking innovative ways to deliver services more cost effectively. Middlesex Community College (MCC) will host the program at its newly completed suburban campus on Springs Road in Bedford.

Speakers from many communities throughout Mass. will outline regionalization programs underway in their communities covering such services as a regional fire district, regional collaborative for joint purchasing and combined administrative services for municipal and educational operations. The program will also include an update on other regional programs throughout the country. Guided tours of the campus will also be provided.

This complimentary symposium is being offered to selectmen, town managers, school committees, superintendents, finance committees and those involved in regional planning agencies. Program sponsors include the Middlesex County Selectmen's Association, Metropolitan Area Planning Council, Northern Middlesex Council of Governments, Massachusetts Regional Planning Commission, Nashoba Valley/Minuteman Finance Committee Association and the managers from Bedford, Billerica, Burlington, Chelmsford and Tewksbury.

Creative Arts offers variety of classes

Creative Arts Music, Drama, and Art classes begin the week of September 21, and registration is under way right now! There's a lot new at Creative Arts.

First of all, Creative Arts received a very positive response to its appeal toward last spring's cumulative budget shortfall, and is beginning this fall on sound financial footing. Changes in structure programming, and budget will help ensure a good year in 1992-93.

New programming in the Art Department features a "core program" aimed at building a foundation of skills for the young artist. Classes include "Artkids" for pre-schoolers, an introduction to 3-D with wood, plaster, paints, clay, and more; "Learn to Draw" for ages 8-10 - learn about line, form, and shading using pencil, charcoal, pen and ink; "Clay Critters & Creations" for ages 8-12, make masks, pots, animals and more with clay; the popular "Art Basics" skill building course for ages 6-9 and 10-13 and "Woodworking" for ages 6-8 and 9-12. Classes for adults include basic drawing, watercolor painting, and art media sampler, and stained glass (spring only), and several craft workshops in December and in the spring.

The Music Program offers instruction in violin, viola, cello, and piano through Suzuki and Traditional methods of study, guitar, flute, clarinet, saxophone, trumpet, low brass, voice, and percussion. Creative Arts also features an ensemble program which includes two levels of string orchestra, flute and brass ensembles, a rock ensemble, and new cello ensemble, and an the premier advanced chamber ensemble. Classes for adults are offered in dulcimer playing, beginning singing and folk music workshop (take your own instrument). For kids, there's creative music and dramatics for ages 5-7 and 8-12, music movement, imagination! for ages 4-5 and 6-7 and Stepping Out for ages 2-3 and 3-4.

As the 1992 school year begins, Creative Arts welcomes new members of the Board of Directors, staff and faculty. New Board Members are Charlene Graham, Anna Woerner, and Marie Tyminski, all of Reading, and new officers are Nancy Twomey, president; Fran Scott, vice president; Anna Woerner, treasurer; and Marie Tyminski, clerk. New staff members include Office Manager Susan Phipps of Wilmington, Art Coordinator Lynne Murray of Lexington, Suzuki Coordinator Susan Bauman of Newton, and Accountant Larry Penta of Reading.

Both Art and Music Programs welcome new faculty including Suzuki Violin Instructor Susan Bauman (B.A. in Philosophy and Psychology; Suzuki Teaching certification), Dramatics instructor Mary Carfagna (M. Mus., St. Louis Conservatory; B.F.A., California Institute of the Arts), Music and Movement instructor Molly Porterfield (B.A. in Music Theory; Jazz Piano Performance Diploma, Berklee College of Music; Dalcroze Eurhythmics studies at Longy and Boston Conservatory), Piano instructor Roger Stratton (M.Mus., New England Conservatory; B.A., Oberlin College), and Children's Art instructor Diane Slezak (M.A. in Fine Arts Education, Kean College; B.A. in Fine Arts, Montclair State College.)

Creative Arts, based in Reading, is a regional community center for art education serving over 40 communities and 1000 registrants per year. It has become a known source of quality arts education due to many things: the leadership of a dedicated Board of Directors made up of caring community members and parents; the fine instruction given by a talented faculty drawn from the finest conservatories and art schools; a top-notch Suzuki Instruction Program, boasting over 100 participants in strings and piano, and the on going support of arts advocates, local benefactors, Reading and other area businesses, media, and caring community members.

Come join the Creative Arts community this year...for a class or workshop, to study an instrument, to explore hidden talents! Call (617) 942-0538 for registration information and brochure.

Friday, Sept. 25: 1 to 3 p.m., watercolor, teacher Louise Anderson.

As the restful scenes of Tina's Skyscapes finish the summer exhibition at Shawmut Bank in Wilmington Plaza along come the exciting ocean scenes by Arthur Venditti which may remind you of your summer's better moments. Arthur grew up in Boston's old West End where he studied art at several Boston schools, including classes at Mass. College of Art. He has been president of the Tewksbury Art Guild and a former member of the Wilmington Arts Council. He has given painting demonstrations at the Fourth of July art exhibit on the common and at the Shawsheen Project Enterprise for gifted children, a one-man show at the Harnden Tavern and teaching oil painting for the high school adult ed program and for the Tewksbury Art Center.

The curator has surprises for later in the exhibition year, also by Arthur Venditti.

Card collecting class

While a fall chill is in the air for baseball fans, baseball card collecting is as hot as ever. Whether you are a seasoned collector, or just beginning a new hobby, "Baseball Card Investing: the Risks and Rewards," will provide an opportunity to learn more about this fascinating activity. The two session course is offered by Middlesex Community College (MCC) and will be held at the Burlington Campus, Terrace Hall Avenue, beginning September 28, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Instructor Mike Rutstein is the editor and publisher of Baseball Underground, the three year old, Red Sox magazine sold outside Fenway Park. He will be joined by special guest speakers who will discuss the ups and downs of investing in the current market.

"People have the impression that they can make money buying and selling cards. But it's extremely important in today's market to choose cards very carefully," reports Rutstein. He continued to explain that 20 years ago, people didn't realize the value of cards. Today, however, with increased card production and people taking better care of their collections, it is important to examine the value of contemporary cards.

Students in the class will have an opportunity to participate in discussions about what constitutes a collectible card and how to rate them. The course is appropriate for parents and their children.

Rocco's, Charlie's post playoff wins

Rocco's 12 Col. Liquors 9

This was a great game all-around, as it took nine innings for Rocco's to take the victory over the first place team.

Rocco's had a big first inning which resulted in many errors by Colonial. With Rocco's ahead 9-3 going into the bottom of the third, Steve Brander smacked a solo homerun to make it a 9-4 game.

In the fifth, Colonial got two runs back from RBI hits by Brander and Barry Hanson.

With Rocco's clinging to the three run lead, Colonial decided to get something going. In the bottom of the seventh, Bob Barcellos started it off with a walk. Both he and Brander scored on Brander's triple that allowed him to score on an error.

Bobby Butters continued the rally with a single and John Smith drove him in with an RBI double.

The eighth inning was scoreless for both teams. In the ninth, Rocco's decided to get its bats out again.

Jimmy McGonagle singled in a run, but the big blow was Richie Rappoli's two-run double to score the insurance runs. Colonial came up empty in their ninth as Rocco's upset Colonial, 12-9.

Charlie's Auto Body 25 Stelio's 8

Stelio's became the second team to be knocked out of the playoffs, with Charlie's slaughtering them by a score of 25-8.

In the first inning alone, Charlie's scored 18 runs, nearly batting around twice.

Eddie Poste, Peter Brown (three RBI's), Ronnie Barber (three RBI's) and Ted Wicks also drove in three runners in this slugfest.

Eddie Collins and John Engdahl each had three hits in the losing cause.

Final standings

Colonial Park Liquors	16-2
Charlie's Auto Body	11-7
McNamara Tire	10-8
Stelio's	10-8
Rocco's	7-11
Lion's Club	6-12

Softball tourney

Wilmington girls winners

by Paul Gilligan
The Wilmington Girls 10 and under softball team emerged victorious as the winners of the recent Wilmington Tournament.

In the first game, versus the USA champions, Wilmington's offensive machine was fine tuned as they cruised to a 12-7 victory.

Leading the offensive honors were Michelle McGonagle, Katie Blair and Colleen Cahill with two hits apiece.

The Wilmington defense was immense, as Robin Mainini, Lauren McCarthy and Megan Sullivan made timely plays to keep the opposition in check.

Michelle McGonagle was named offensive MVP and Lauren McCarthy defensive MVP in the game.

In the championship game vs. Taunton the Wilmington girls emerged victorious with a 6-2 win.

Courtney Gilligan's two-out double with the bases loaded in the fourth inning rallied the team ahead to stay.

Maura Lynch and Jacqui Ingram had key hits to keep the big blue machine alive.

The defense was led by shortstop Kristen Thomas and Pitcher Colleen "Soup" Campbell who chalked up her second win of the day.

MVP honors in the championship game went to Kristen Thomas and Courtney Gilligan.

Manager Paul Lyman credited the team victories to extra batting practice at the Townsend batting cages during the bad weather.

Also, this group of girls made the key plays offensively and defensively to keep the other teams in check.

Helping out with the coaching chores were Cindy Mainini and Paul Gilligan.

Rotary Park will 'open' Sept. 16

Rotary Governor Joseph E. Scanlon Jr. of Lynn and the Rotarians of Wilmington enjoyed each other at luncheon, on September 2, when Joe paid his annual visit to Wilmington. The governor of District 7930 has 42 clubs in eastern Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire over which he presides, and which he visits during his annual tour.

Joe Scanlon happens to be the retired Fire Chief of Lynn. Naturally he had as his luncheon partner Rotarian Dan Wandell, Fire Chief of Wilmington.

Before the luncheon Joe Scanlon, among other things, inspected Wilmington's Rotary Park, formerly an old cranberry bog, and the source of many mosquitoes. It had been constructed over 100 years ago by France Hiller, (Mrs. Dr. Hiller) as another source of money, for that lady.

The bog was purchased by the Rotary Club of Wilmington about 40 years ago, and was the subject of a massive "filling" operation after which the club presented the area to the Town of Wilmington as a combination park and playground (without mosquitoes).

Currently, Rotary Park is undergoing renovation by the club members. Approximately $3200 has been spent by the club in the past few weeks to construct a walk around the pond, and individual Rotarians have been putting labor into the project.

The Wilmington Rotary will "reopen" the park with appropriate ceremonies on September 16, if everything goes according to plan.

Joe Scanlon's address to the club was just the kind that every Rotarian likes. He began five minutes before his scheduled time, and ended 10 minutes ahead of schedule. He noted some of the funds to which the local club donates, including the $1,000 donated to the Wilmington Community Fund.

"Rotary is the oldest service organization in the world - an organization of doers" he told the members. District 7930 is at this time preparing a Rotary Fund to help the people of Florida, recently stricken by hurricane Andrew. The fund will be administered by three Past District Governors.

Governor Joe plans to again be present in Wilmington for a Rotary meeting in March.

Phone scam using name of Lord & Taylor

by Bill Conlon

A Wilmington resident, who said she didn't want her name used, told of a phone call she received which she said a possible scam using the name of the Lord & Taylor fashion outlet.

The woman said she received a call asking if she would like to have a Lord & Taylor's credit card. The caller, she said, offered her a card for no service charge, claiming she had an "A-1" credit rating.

But when asked to provide her name and Social Security number the woman refused, and the caller hung up shortly afterward.
 The Wilmington woman said she then contacted Lord & Taylor's and found that they indeed have a credit card, but they are not called around to promote the credit program.
 Be advised.

Case of missing handcuffs

To this particular person, a story in the North Reading Transcript on Sept. 3 was somewhat amusing.

A Wilmington man, unnamed, had been placed in protective custody by the North Reading Police. The only identification was that he was 26 years old, and was reported to be drunk when arrested.

The man was able to break away from the custody of the police, while handcuffed. North Reading and Reading police searched for him unsuccessfully.

He is to be summoned, the Transcript said, for assault and battery on a police officer, and for larceny under $250, the handcuffs.

Fund will help sick

Persons truly in financial need in the community who are sick will be helped again this year to receive health care through the Visiting Nurse of Middlesex-East Free Care Fund.

With a goal of $130,000, Campaign 1992 - 1993 for the Free Care Fund will begin in late September when residents will be asked for donations. This is the fourth successive year the visiting nurse agency has had $130,000.00 as its goal for the needy sick. The previous three years were successful in meeting the goal and Jacquelyn Galluzzi, CEO, thanks the public for its support.

She says that $230,000.00 of Free Care is given annually by Middlesex East, with $130,000.00 of it raised on the fund raising campaigns. Monies from the Free Care Fund insure the needy sick are able to access the same quality home health care that is available to all residents. According to Galluzzi, 90 percent of the population is able to pay for care, it is for the 10 percent who cannot that the visiting nurses are fund raising each year. If you can help, make your check payable to the Free Care Fund, 12 Beacon Street, Stoneham, MA 02180. You also have the option of donating your money to either the Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex East or the Hospice program - Hospice of Middlesex East.

If you or a member of your family needs care call the 90-year-old agency at 438-3770. Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex-East is celebrating 90 years of providing home health care to the community in 1992.

Dog obedience classes beginning in Reading

Do you want your puppy or older dog to stop jumping on you and your guests? Or does your dog look at you and run in the opposite direction when you call him? Want to know why? Then sign up for the puppy and dog training classes at the Reading YMCA beginning in September for dogs of all ages. Taught by Donna Laconti, instructor at the Boston MSPCA and Dedham Community House, both the class for pups eight to 18 weeks and the dog class give owners the opportunity to learn about normal canine behavior (the source of most behavior problems), common puppy problems (house training, chewing, biting) and techniques to prevent serious adult problems. Dog learn basic commands.

Laconti's course, supervised by

Dr. Amy Marder, VMD, whose successful house call practice brings her into contact with hundreds of dogs and cats with behavior problems, helps owners learn practical solutions to many unwanted behaviors. Both Marder and Laconti believe that improving the human-dog partnership early will result in fewer people who feel the need to give up their dogs at the "trouble age" of nine or 10 months, thus preventing unnecessary dog deaths.

Laconti, working on a special masters degree in animal behavior will follow Marder's path soon. She works for NEADS, a non-profit that trains and places assistance dogs with people with disabilities.

For more information, please contact the YMCA at 944-7989.

Wilmington's Blanchard family

Blanchard house

The David Gagnon home at the corner of Middlesex Avenue and Glen Road was once the home of William Blanchard Jr., who was the state inspector of hops. (photo by Robin Smith)

by Capt. Larz Neilson

At the time of the Puritan settlement of Massachusetts Bay a Huguenot family by the name of Blanchard settled near the mouth of the Merrimack River, probably in Newburyport. Four or five generations later William Blanchard, born in Billerica, moved to Wilmington. He built a home on what was then "The Main Road" and is now Middlesex Avenue, at the corner of Federal Street.

There is no home there today. A large growth of lilac bushes is to be seen, lining Federal Street.

From that site, in his later years Colonel William Blanchard, could watch the soldiers of the Wilmington militia at drill in the field below, where the homes along Mystic Avenue are today.

William Blanchard was one of the men who responded to a call, March 6, 1775 when the Minutemen of Wilmington were being organized. Captain Cadwallader Ford (Jr.) was in command. It is to be believed that Blanchard was a sergeant.

With other Minutemen he marched, on April 19, 1775 to Bedford, then to Concord, and then with other Minutemen companies took part in the subsequent fighting to the Cambridge lines.

The part of Paul Revere, as a messenger, on that day is well known. He had been a messenger for the Colonials for some months. Paul was twice seen by the British during those events of Concord Day, and could no longer be considered as a secret messenger.

Capt. Cadwallader Ford of the Wilmington Minutemen was named to replace Paul Revere as a messenger, a service which he performed for some months.

Lieutenant John Harnden became Captain John Harnden, the commanding officer of the Minutemen of Wilmington, and William Blanchard was made the Lieutenant. The Wilmington company was one of three which were sent to guard Harvard College. The other two Minutemen companies were from Reading and Chelmsford.

During the progress of the Battle of Bunker Hill those three companies were sent to Bunker Hill as reinforcements, the Chelmsford company first, the Reading company second, and finally the company of Capt John Harnden. His company arrived at the foot of the back slope to Bunker Hill when the Yankees broke, and retreated down the hill.

The British soldiers, already well mauled, stopped pursuit before they got into conflict with the company of John Harnden.

Lieutenant William Blanchard stayed in the militia. The subsequent history of the soldier is not known to this writer, but he eventually retired with the rank of Colonel.

It is said that across the Main Road (Middlesex Avenue) from his home he established a store which acquired some fame as being the "center" of political life and other activities in Wilmington for some years. In this connection one can consider the name of Federal Street. Why, and how did that street acquire that name?

It can also be noted that Cadwallader Ford retired with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, and Joshua Harnden with the rank of Colonel. There was also Major John Jaquith and Captain John Gowing, he who commanded the Wilmington Militia after the Revolution and who built the "Swain House" at Perry's Corner.

William Blanchard Jr. was born August 5, 1776, a little over a year after the Battle of Bunker Hill. He married Betsy, the daughter of Lt. Col. and Elizabeth Morrill Ford of Wilmington, on Dec. 31, 1801.

Hops had been growing in Wilmington, and in other communities. Somehow the Wilmington hops, which were grown in the "light" soil on the hills became famous for quality.

William Blanchard Jr., son of Colonel Blanchard, son-in-law of Lt. Col. Cadwallader Ford was appointed to the position of State Inspector of Hops. It was an important position, which had a salary of $2,000 a year.

Only the Governor of Massachusetts had a salary which was equal.

Wilmington Hops (to distinguish the type that won fame for quality) were grown from 1806 to 1837.

Seventy-six thousand, eight hundred and six bags of hops were sent to Albany, NY from Wilmington, via the Middlesex Canal to Boston and then by sailing vessel to Albany, NY. During the period of the War of 1812 Asa G. Sheldon transported hops to Albany by wagon, when British cruisers were preventing coast wise traffic along the New England shore.

The total weight sent to Albany was 16,500,000 pounds. The highest price received was 34 cents a pound in 1817. The lowest was five cents in 1819.

The home of William Blanchard Jr. is today the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Gagnon, of 200 Middlesex Avenue (the former Main Road), next to the Congregational Church.

There is a story which can be believed that a home was on the site prior to the home of William Blanchard Jr. That home was constructed about 1730-1735, and part of it may be still existing in the present Gagnon home.

This writer seems to recall several references to that early home.

Winchester Hospital marks anniversary of special care nursery

The birth of a child is almost always a joyous occasion. For Patricia Meade and her husband Paul Therkelson of Andover, however, the joy they should have felt at the birth of their son Jeffrey was eclipsed by the fear that their baby might not live.

Born prematurely at 27 weeks, Jeffrey weighed barely 1000 grams - just over two pounds at birth.

"Jeffrey had several problems when he was born," explains Alan Fujii, M.D., a neonatologist and pediatrician cardiologist who is the director of special care at Winchester Hospital. Dr. Fujii is also a member of the neonatology group at Children's Hospital in Boston where Jeffrey was transferred after his birth at Brigham & Women's Hospital.

"Because his lungs were not sufficiently developed, Jeffrey required mechanical ventilation. And at two weeks of age, his condition suddenly worsened and he became sick enough to die," Dr. Fujii says.

"Jeffrey wasn't expected to live," relates his mother, Patricia Meade. "We had several family conferences, and it was Dr. Fujii who had to give us this news, several times." But Jeffrey rallied and, after two months of care at Children's, he was transferred to Winchester Hospital's Special Care Nursery to convalesce.

The Special Care Nursery is the oldest Massachusetts Department of Public Health designated Level II nursery north of Boston. Equipped to care for premature or high risk infants, it is affiliated with the Joint Program in Neonatology in Boston. The neonatology groups at Children's Hospital covers the Special Care Nursery at Winchester Hospital, under the direction of Dr. Fujii.

"Dr. Fujii transferred from Children's to Winchester Hospital right before Jeffrey did," explains Patricia Meade. "It was very comforting to have that continuity of care."

"Jeffrey had severe chronic lung disease when he came to Winchester," says Dr. Fujii. "We took care of him for about two months and, even after we sent him home, he had several relapses." He was readmitted three times, and seen on an out patient basis for several months after that.

"It's certainly more convenient for the parents to have this service in a community hospital setting," says Dr. Fujii. "We can do the same things at Winchester Hospital - and more of certain things - than the downtown hospitals."

Today, Jeffrey is two and a half and doing fine. "He's a really busy little guy," says his mother. "He's still making up for time in terms of his respiratory development; he still requires oxygen at night, for example. But we feel like we've gotten a second chance."

On September 13, Jeffrey and his parents - together with dozens of other "alumni" of the Special Care Nursery - will attend the Nursery's third annual reunion.

"At previous reunions, there's never been a parent thanking the staff of the Nursery," notes Patricia Meade. "And they're the reason we're here. I'd be happy to be the one to do it, because we're so grateful for their support and kindness in the tough times."

Man arrested for old fine he'd paid

A Tewksbury man arrested for an old unpaid fine was released after it was found that the fine had indeed been paid.

Brian Ward of Oxford Road was picked up by the Tewksbury police August 29 and given to Wilmington police.

Ward went to court in January 1990, and he was ordered to pay a fine. The warrant was issued in February 1990, charging failure to pay the fine, or "default."

Wilmington Deputy Police Chief Bernard Nally said that when Ward went back to court, the default was removed, since the fine had in fact been paid. Nally said that he had not yet researched all the details, but he was certain the default warrant had been rescinded. However, police were not informed, and Ward was arrested, as per normal procedure for an outstanding warrant.

Ward's mother said the fine was paid two years ago, but the default had not been removed until his return to court.

Unique Recycling Plan

By DOUGLAS WOOD-BOYLE

That people might be more willing to turn in their recyclable bottles and cans for a chance to win a million dollar lottery than for the surety of receiving a 5¢ deposit is the basis for the premise behind Joseph Mozzicato, Jr.'s attempt to have the state legislature pass the Mozzicato Recycling Bill.

As of this time about 16,000 people have showed their support for Mozzicato's year-old premise by signing petitions and sending prepared letters to the state representatives and senators.

Mozzicato started the planning stages of his one-person campaign about two years ago and just under a year ago the actual campaign got under way. During the planning stages Mozzicato said that he went over the pros and cons of a lottery as opposed to raising the deposit on recyclable bottles and cans.

He also researched some figures on the issue. Those figures show that in Massachusetts $20 million to $80 million goes unclaimed each year, which represents between 425 million to 1.6 billion in cans and bottles that are lying around polluting the environment.

According to Mozzicato, the figures are from studies done by MassPIRG (Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group) and local recycling plants.

On a national level those figures expand to 32 billion to 38 billion in unrecycled materials.

Mozzicato notes "Even with all the organizations that are running bottle and can drives we still have (large amounts of unrecycled cans)."

Under the Mozzicato Recycling Plan 10 to 15 percent of the money spent on deposits would be returned to an agency such as the lottery commission for administrative costs. Another 25 percent would be spent to educate people and provide environmental programs with the final 60 to 65 percent going into a prize pool.

People returning the glass and plastic bottles and aluminum cans would receive a lottery ticket for every 10 or 20 recyclables that are returned.

The proposal has drawn the attention of state Senator Charles Shannon (R-Winchester) who has sponsored the submission of Senate Bill 380. At this time the bill is still sitting in committee waiting for a third reading and amendments have been added to it.

Mozzicato has dedicated this work to the memory of his father Joseph Mozzicato, Sr. who died in 1990. The bill is officially known in the Massachusetts Senate as the Mozzicato Bill.

Mozzicato said that it was his father's values that led him to file the bill. In a scrap book of his progress Mozzicato has written the following dedication:

This environmental project is dedicated to a gentleman who never knew the meaning of the word "quitter."

It is in that concern that his everlasting inspiration will lead on for future generations.

Mozzicato said, "A lot of people take the view that one person can't make a difference. He (Mozzicato Senior) took the view that you lead by example."

"If you picked up a can or a piece of litter and put it in a basket, then you would set a positive example for others to follow."

According to Mozzicato the education money portion of his bill would help to show people the many different uses that recycled materials can be used for.

"They are so many uses," Mozzicato said. "You have to have an open mind and be almost childlike in imagination."

He notes studies showing that most children learn between the ages of three to six years of age.

"We need to take a child's approach and try new ideas," Mozzicato said, adding "They won't always be correct."

Referring to the philosophy of Thomas Alva Edison, Mozzicato said that people have to learn to turn failures into successes.

About the Towns

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

"About The Towns" covers recent events in the 13-town Middlesex East area. Because Middlesex East deadlines are early, please check the front sections of this paper for up-to-date information about your city or town. We also welcome original material - please send it to Phyllis Nissen, "About The Towns," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867.

OOPS, STRAIGHT FROM THE WILMINGTON EDITION OF THE "TOWN CRIER" - "The Wilmington Police Dept. solved the case of the missing inspection stickers on Wednesday.

"A call over the police radio about 11 a.m. indicated that one cruiser would be at the Exxon station to get an inspection sticker. The officer had just noticed that the car didn't have a sticker.

"Over the air came calls from three other officers, each indicating that their cruisers did not have stickers either.

"The town took delivery of new cruisers about a month ago. Somebody forgot to have them inspected.

"The cops, at least, were able to save themselves about 200 bucks by not writing themselves or each other tickets for no inspection sticker."

WOBURN - The Woburn City Council Ordinance Committee has given a green light to "right on red" for drivers traveling along Woburn's School Street and Industrial Parkway areas.

The committee voted unanimously to allow for the withdrawal of police Traffic Control Officer Harold Magee's proposal to make rights on red illegal at School Street facing north and southbound drivers on Mishawum Road and at Industrial Parkway facing northbound drivers on Ryan Road.

Magee had termed the right turns safety hazards.

That vote, notes the Woburn edition of the Daily Times Chronicle, may have come as a surprise to some because the "no right turn on red" signs had already been installed.

MELROSE - The Melrose Mayor's Open Space Planning

Committee has met for the first time to begin work on a five-year plan to address the issue of open space in the city.

According to city planner and committee chair Jeff Luxenberg, an inventory of the city's open space and recreational facilities is overdue by three years, the last five-year plan having been done in 1984.

Luxenberg has just applied for a $150,000 grant to convert the Tremont Street pool to a skating facility, and plans to solicit as much community involvement and state and federal funding as possible.

The committee is looking at the possible consolidation of park and recreation maintenance work which is now being done separately by the school, park, cemetery, and public works departments.

The committee will also address the use of Mount Hood and look at previous goals which were never met, such as improvements to the Hoover, Gooch and Conant playgrounds as well as Messengers Meadow and Pine Banks.

Other committee members are: Public Works Superintendent Joseph Mackay, Alderman Michael Festa, Superintendent of Schools Dr. David Driscoll, Planning Board members Brent Mangel and John Sadowski, School Committee member William Mahoney, Conservation Commission member Frank Stewart, Park Commission member Michael Turner, and Melrose residents Anne Ahern, Gerald Fitzpatrick and Linda Benezra.

MEDFORD - Governor William Weld recently appointed Marie McCarthy R.N., Director of the School of Nursing at Lawrence Memorial Hospital in Medford, to the Mass. Board of Registration of Nursing.

As a member of that board, McCarthy will represent hospital-based diploma nursing programs.

SENIOR CENTER - Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Wiggins, Sr. of Woburn who recently celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary.

The Wiggins have been Woburn residents for 50 years, and all four of their children are Woburn High graduates.

Creative Arts plans for very busy season

Creative Arts Music, Drama, and Art classes begin the week of September 21, and registration is under way right now. There's a lot new at Creative Arts.

First of all, Creative Arts received a very positive response to its appeal toward last Spring's cumulative budget shortfall, and is beginning this Fall on sound financial footing. Changes in structure, programming, and budget will help ensure a good year in 1992-93.

New programming in the Art Department features a "core program" aimed at building a foundation of skills for the young artist. Classes include Artkids for preschoolers - an introduction to 3-D with wood, plaster, paints, clay and more; Learn to Draw for ages 8-10 - learn about line, form, and shading using pencil, charcoal, pen and ink; Clay Critters & Creations for ages 8-12 - make masks, pots, animals and more with clay; the popular Art Basics skill-building course for ages 6-9 and 10-13 and Woodworking for ages 6-8 and 9-12. Classes for adults include Basic Drawing, Watercolor Painting, an Art Media Sampler, and Stained Glass (Spring only), and several craft workshops in December and in the Spring.

The Gables at Winchester hosts a Health Fair for senior adults Sept. 16-19

WINCHESTER — The Gables at Winchester, a new luxury rental congregate retirement community, is pleased to announce a four day Health Fair which will address many of the health related issues that senior adults and their families will encounter. The fair will feature an array of health care specialists in different fields that will address specific issues of interest to this population and discuss the challenges and many decisions involved in long term care. The lengthy program will be a bonanza for both educating the general public on elderly health issues and also introducing some of the latest concepts in retirement living practiced at the Gables at Winchester. The program will feature a number of health educators, physicians, pharmacists, optical specialists and many more professionals that will be on hand to meet with visitors.

notch Suzuki Instruction Program, boasting over 100 participants in Strings and Piano, and the ongoing support of arts advocates, local benefactors, Reading and other area businesses, media and caring community members.

Join the Creative Arts community this year by calling 942-0538 for registration information and a brochure.

Both Art and Music Programs welcome new faculty including Suzuki Violin instructor Susan Bauman (B.A. in Philosophy and Psychology; Suzuki Teaching Certification), Dramatics instructor Mary Carfagna (M.Mus., St. Louis Conservatory; B.F.A., California Institute of the Arts), Music & Movement instructor Molly Porterfield (B.A. in Music Theory; Jazz Piano Performance Diploma, Berklee College of Music; Dalcroze Eurhythmics studies at Longy and Boston Conservatory), Piano instructor Roger Stratton (M.Mus., New England Conservatory; B.A., Oberlin College), and Children's Art instructor Diane Slezak (M.A.

The fair will be kicked-off with an open house hosted by Dave MacNeill, Senior Program Director at WCRB, who will talk on the subject of music therapy for seniors. The fair will run from Wednesday, Sept. 16, through Saturday the 19th. Each afternoon between 2 and 4 p.m. presentations and demonstrations by various home health groups will take place at the Gables. On Saturday, all of the health providers and experts will be present for an all day session of demonstrations and lectures between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

The Gables at Winchester continues to develop and practice new progressive programs that emphasize the health needs of its senior residents. The blend of keeping residents independent in their new homes and yet providing extra help when required is an expertise perfected by the Gables' management which is part of the AdvantageHEALTH organization who now manage eight different retirement communities. An underlying capability is the Gables' extensive assisted living options which are provided through Special Care Home Health Services, a Medicare-certified affiliate of AdvantageHEALTH Corporation. These health assistance programs can be temporary or permanent, and are all administered in the residents' apartment under the supervision of a geriatric nurse practitioners. The degree of care can vary from daily homemaker assistance to extensive 24-hour around-the-clock daily living programs. The assisted living programs at the Gables provide choice, degree of assistance, and allow for spouses to live together even when one has a health issue. These programs circumvent the need for premature and unnecessary nursing home placement and in a majority of situations allow residents to enjoy independent lifestyles for the remainder of their lives without compromise or unnecessary expense. The assisted living programs are supported by Internist Inc., an affiliated group of distinguished medical internists that provide for the major medical needs of the residents living at the Gables. The Gables even offers a unique resident protection plan which anticipates future health needs of the residents.

For additional information about the forthcoming Gables' Health Fair and the programs offered at the Gables contact: Gerald Teplitzky, executive director, Gables at Winchester, 299 Cambridge Street, Winchester, Mass. 01890 or phone (617) 756-1026.

POLYMNIA CHORAL SOCIETY SEEK VOICES

The Polymnia Choral Society of Melrose, under the direction of James E. Reyes, is currently preparing to begin its 1992/1993 concert season. Anyone interested in music is invited to participate in this active community chorus which has been in existence since 1953.

Polymnia's first rehearsal of the season takes place Tuesday, September 15, at 7:30 p.m. in the basement of the Unitarian Universalist Church, 70 West Emerson Street, Melrose (right across from the Public Library). The first two weeks will be open rehearsals.

The chorus includes approximately 60 members from many North Shore communities. Singers are welcomed and needed for all voice parts - Soprano, Alto, Tenor and Bass, but male voices are urgently needed. Rehearsals are held every Tuesday evening during the concert season, September through early June.

Polymnia's three concerts provide a varied musical experience for singers and audiences alike. The 1992 December concert will include Bach's "Magnificat," a traditional seasonal offering, and such classical selections as Purcell's "Te Deum" and Poulenc's "Gloria."

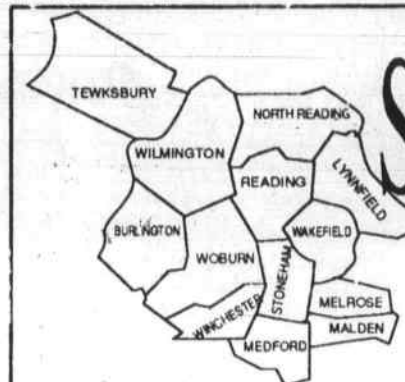

Polymnia's current Director, James E. Reyes, brings energy and enthusiasm to the chorus. He is an assistant professor of composition at the Berklee School of Music in Boston, and organist/choir director at St. Peter's Church in Weston. His background includes much teaching and choral work.

Non-singing music lovers who would like to help behind the scenes are also welcome. For more information about Polymnia, please call (617) 665-2241 or (617) 884-5899.

--Of the 260 Melrose students in last year's eighth grade, 21 have indicated plans to attend private schools this year.

The Class of 1995 saw 25 of its members leave the Melrose Public School System for private education, and 19 opted out of the Melrose High Class of 1994 - at the eighth grade level.

--Roof projects at Tewksbury Memorial High School, Tewksbury Junior High and the Loella F. Dewing School took off this summer.

The projects resulted in a new roof on the original section of the high schools, a new roof on the entire Dewing School and the first phase of repairs at the junior high which will eventually include a new roof on the cafeteria and the removal of numerous skylights.

--April M.J. Lewis, a member of the Woburn High Class of '87, has won a United States Achievement Academy Collegiate Award in Journalism.

The academy recognizes less than 10% of all American college students, selecting them based on the exclusive recommendations of professors, coaches or other school sponsors, and on its own criteria which includes the student's academic performance, interest and aptitude; leadership qualities; responsibility; enthusiasm; motivation to learn and improve citizenship; attitude and cooperative spirit; and dependability.

Lewis graduated from Emerson College in May and was previously featured in the Daily Times Chronicle for her coverage of Terry Anderson's release. She was also a spotlight reporter for the television news program "The European Project."

--The Stoneham High Drama Club awarded end-of-year letters to upperclassmen and honored 26 members of the Stoneham High Class of '92.

Upperclassmen earn enough points for letters by working in the variety of roles necessary to a drama production, such as performing on stage, managing costumes and props, constructing sets, and learning the skills for stage handling, lighting and publicity.

In a ceremony marking the end of the last school year, Drama Director Paula Sampson recognized seniors Adam Larson, Carla Martino, Evan Skladany, Todd Stillman, and Michele Lacey for their special contributions to the club.

Other seniors of note were John Andrews, Jennifer Capone, Bill Connolly, Aaron Cunningham, Laura Cutone, Barbara Capozzi, Laura DeMatteo, Amy Forbes, Joseph Haggerty, Celeste Kupczewski, Samuel Krakow, Allison Legor, Maureen McCarthy, Jennifer Murray, Beth Trachtenberg, and outgoing president Chris Roach.

Also awarded drama letters were juniors - now seniors - Kate Ahrens, Neil Anderson, Kari Britt, Karen Dresser, Jeanne McBride, and Beth Werlin.

--Through social events held throughout the year, the Lynnfield Couples Club raised enough money last year to donate scholarships to two Lynnfield High graduates: David Long and Robin Walsh.

Scholarship committee members are Rick and Patti Brangiforte, Phil and Paula McKeever, Tim and Sandy Morrison, and George and Laura Celata.

--"We're not going to put his picture on the side of a milk carton," says one member of the Wilmington School Committee in the Wilmington edition of the "Town Crier," "but call the School Committee if there are any Billy Fay sightings."

Fay is - or was - the Wilmington Superintendent of Schools.

"Honeymoon in Vegas"

by Rochelle Flynn

"Honeymoon in Vegas" starring Nicholas Cage, James Caan, Sarah Jessica Parker. Written and directed by Andrew Bergman. Produced by Mike Lobell. Rated PG-13.

Jack Singer, a detective whose specialty is divorce cases, promises his dying mother he will never marry. But Jack loves Betsy, a grade school teacher with great hair (Sarah Jessica Parker). So, after years of nightmares about mom and watching other people's marriages disintegrate, Jack finally decides to take the plunge. He and Betsy are off to Vegas for fun in the sun and a walk down the aisle.

Enter Tommy Korman, a smooth-talking gambler in a shark skin suit. Tommy spies Betsy across the room. Betty, turns out, is a dead ringer for the gambler's dead wife. All bets are on.

Tommy invites Jack to a card game. Poker. Well, that's Jack's game anyway. Sixty thousand dollars later, Jack is handing over his girlfriend for a supposedly platonic weekend with Tommy. Betsy, expecting a wedding, is not pleased, but traipses off to Hawaii with Jack, who turns out to be quite charming and tres rich.

The premise is decidedly off the wall, but then so is everything writer/director Andrew Bergman writes, such as "Blazing Saddles" and "The In-Laws." Not that this has the sparkle of those films, but it comes close.

Sarah Jessica Parker is one of the film's weak spots, as she seems to lack the verve she's shown in the past, but Caan captures our attention as a man who will do anything to get what he wants. Both delightful and ruthless, there is a platinia of loneliness to this character that almost makes you want him to get the girl, even if she is half his age and engaged to someone else.

Cage, who wildly chases his beloved to Hawaii and back to Vegas, shows more restraint in this role than he has in the past. It works for him, adding a credibility to his desperate detective. But this really is Caan's film, as his combination of humor, pathetic loneliness and an edgy need for power make his character the most interesting of the ensemble.

The film does start to drag about three quarters of the way through, but Bergman saves it with his quirky supporting players. Jack Lord pops up as an eccentric native Hawaiian with a penchant for show tunes. Pat Morita is a fast talking but kindly cabbie. And then there are the flying Elvises. Bergman takes the running gag of an Elvis on every corner in Vegas to a new height. His skydiving Elvises in illuminated suits share a good natured love of the King is infectious. The scene is typical Bergman, strange and funny. And it makes up for any lag time before it.

Recycling

From S-1

The lottery payment goes along with Mozzicato's own philosophy. "I'm a big believer in incentive. I don't think the government has given the proper incentives."

According to Mozzicato, the government has mostly acted by putting the onus on those people that pollute by levying fines and punishments.

Mozzicato sees at least five benefits to his recycling lottery plan. In the first place the plan would help to recover the $20 million to $80 million that is going unclaimed and recycle the money back into the economy by allowing the lottery winners to be able to purchase more.

A second benefit according to Mozzicato would be the creation of more jobs in the recycling industry, leading to employment.

A savings benefit would be realized as the costs of landfills would go down.

Mozzicato also believes that passage of the bill would enable the state to see more revenue from taxes as the lottery winners spend their money.

The predominate benefit of the program would be a cleaner earth for future generations to live in and the setting of an example for our children and grandchildren to follow.

The Mozzicato bill also notes that the recycler can keep the 5¢ deposit rather than collect a lottery ticket if that is the person's wish.

To those people who would complain about the gambling aspect of the program Mozzicato explains, "You aren't taking money from your pocket that would go into food, clothing or other necessities. You are using money that is being collected anyway."

Mozzicato is hoping the bill will go beyond the borders of Massachusetts and said that he has already received attention from as far away as Boca Raton, Florida.

He notes that U.S. Representative Edward J. Markey (D-Seventh Congressional District) has filed legislation based on the present Massachusetts recycling bill offering a straight rebate based on the deposit money. Mozzicato said he is attempting to talk to Representative Markey about his proposed legislation.

One problem that Mozzicato sees with the Markey legislation is that the price of a deposit would be higher. Mozzicato believes that might lead to people no longer buying cases of soda or beer because the final cost with the deposit would be too high.

The 39 (plus)-year-old single Winchester resident notes that the plan developed from his being "a neat-nik."

"Everything has to have a place," he said.

Although his Bachelor of Science degree was in marketing, he said that the fact he attended the University of New Hampshire at Plymouth College, led him to take environmental courses as well.

The recycling bill is not the only thing Mozzicato is doing to help the environment. He claims to have collected 27,000 cans in a 20-square mile area over the past year.

For more information on the Mozzicato Bill you can contact Mozzicato at: Spectrum Marketing, (617) 721-0654. Or you can contact the Senate office of Charles Shannon at (617) 722-1578.

Woodchips

ANTHONY MANCONI

There isn't a country in the world like America. On the 17th of March we are all Irish. Columbus Day we are either Italian or Portuguese (take your pick). On the 4th of July we are all Americans and on all other days some of us are all mixed up!

This "Chip," folks, is in grateful acknowledgement to a wonderfully gracious Jewish Lady, Mrs. Ida Kirshtein. She repeatedly told me that her philosophy was wrong, wrong, wrong. "Education comes first, eating is the second priority." I humbly and prayerfully thank the late Mrs. Louis Kirshtein who bombarded my father with hundreds of reasons to send members of my family to high school and then on to college.

It was because of her constant insistence that I can boast of the numerous doctors, lawyers, teachers and other professionals in my immediate family. That is one of the many reasons why I love the Jewish people who consider education second only to their religious faith.

My Aunt Nora, who is looking over my shoulder as I type, said, "Chipper, this is one of the very few times that you've made sense in your column and don't forget to tell your readers that there 'is' one 'failure.' You, the Woodchipper."

I took a short-cut going to school with my pal, Joey Aldo of Winchester, when I was a kid. We went through a field and in climbing over a fence I ripped the seat of my pants on the barbed wire. I asked Joey if he had a safety pin but he had none. We continued on to school anyway. I entered my classroom late. Miss Elison looked up at the clock, then at me, and said, "I see you're little behind this morning, Anthony." "You wouldn't have," I embarrassedly blurted out, "if my pal Joey had a safety pin!"

During prohibition I was engaged to a bootlegger's daughter. I loved her "Still."...Vinny Harrington of Reading told me that he got his money through hard work. "Gee, Vinny, I heard that you inherited it from your rich Uncle Dinny." "That's true, Chipper, but it sure was hard work getting it away from the estate lawyers."

To achieve high goals and noble purposes one, like a marksman, must aim higher than the mark...Some motorists follow this rule, "Red light - Stop; Yellow light - Floor it; Green light - Proceed with caution."

Personality Winners - Patricia Cahill, Philip Daly, Madonna Schromm, Christine M. Pearson and Mary Ellen Becker, all of Reading; Christine Dumas, Craig T. Williams, Jan McDermott, Marc Salsman and Scott Thomas, all of Wakefield; Jan Armstrong, Maureen Hachey-Haffner, Robert LaBossierie, Jennifer Lynch, Joan Marsi and Frank Mazzoni, all of Wilmington; Brian Freitag, John Gallant, Charles Gath, William Haslam, Patricia Janice and Joseph Kelley, all of Tewksbury;

George Palladino, Carol A. Covell R.N., M.S., Rep. Rob Krekorian, Deb Whitehair, and Colleen Dolan, all of North Reading; "Rose of Tralee" contest winner Lisa Bailey, Laurie Pelligrino, Leia DiLorenzo, Anna D. Cenco and Rota DeForte, all of Medford; Chris Fowle, Sabrina Albino, Nicole M. Ashley, Elizabeth Ball and Nicole L. Bruno, all of Melrose; Rich Kirby and Jim Sullivan, genial owners of "My Honey Fitz Pub," Zoann Restucci, Jay Vaitkevicius and Casey Aurelio, all of Malden; Kelly Henderson, Anita Lamantea, Christopher Slowe, Commissioner of Probation Donald Cochran and Jim and Diane McCarthy, all of Stoneham; Suzanne Spinale, Regina C. Lamont, Deborah L. Leverone, Lynne M. Milone, Laura H. Nickerson, Diane L. Perachi and Valerie A. Sapira, all of Burlington.

Also, Police Chief Richard Murphy, Eileen Vitale, Flo Savage, Diane Stevenson, Grace Wright and Frances Winn, all of Saugus; Dianne Levine, Jane Powers, Julie Maguire, Joan H. DiGesce and Jennifer A. Bertolami, all of Woburn; Christine DeLuca, Lisa Marie Donlon, Richard G. Duca, Mary Ellen Flynn and Stephen T. Grieco, all of Winchester; Major General James "Potsie" Geary of the G.A. R. (that's the Grand Army of the Republic, folks), Terrance and Laureen Reardon, Russ and Joyce Rebidue, Joseph Rubbico and Police Chief Paul Romano, all of Lynnfield.

Almost everyone knows that medical costs are astronomically high. Mario DiMino of Stoneham found that out when he received a dental bill. When Mario recovered from the initial shock, he called his dentist and said, "Please, Doc, is this bill for a root canal or the Suez Canal?"

The doctor told Dennis Tully, "I can't do anything for your problem. It's hereditary." "OK," Dennis said, "then send your bill to my father."...Joe Ravidia told me that he finally found a house in his price range but the dog won't move out.

There's an old saying, "Where there's a Will, there's a relative." Some people (sad to say) are like buzzards when a relative dies. The first thing some ask is "How much did he or she leave?" and "Am I mentioned in the will?" I loved it when my Uncle John Shea's will was read. There were a few disappointed listeners when the attorney read aloud, "I, John A. Shea, being of sound mind, spent every dollar, so go out and work for your money the way I did."

When Judge John F. Daly died, an eager-beaver, legal-beagle lawyer lost no time as he 'swooped' down to Governor Michael Curley's office. He demanded that he take Judge Daly's place. Governor Curley (a world renowned Orator) smiled and said, "I'll call Connolly, the undertaker, and ask if he can arrange it."

At a recent convention a sign had been erected near the speaker's platform - "Please do not photograph the Woodchipper when he is speaking. Shoot him as he approaches the platform."

Dreamboats are Brenda Pumphrey and Sonia Moscaritolo of Stoneham.

Super Stars of the week are Fire Chief Donald Wood and his lovely wife, Ponny, of Reading.

44 FLICKS AT BOSTON FILM FESTIVAL

BOSTON - There are a couple of new twists to this year's Eighth Annual Boston Film Festival, running September 14-24. The Human Rights Watch Film Festival will showcase documentary and feature films that address the struggle for human rights worldwide. Also, audience members will now be able to vote for their favorite films and filmmakers, with the First Annual Audience Award announced on Thursday, September 24. The winning films will be shown again September 25-27.

There are 44 flicks on the platter this year, not including such sidebars as the Human Rights Watch festival, the retrospectives or the short film marathons. The event is non-profit and all proceeds go to local Boston cultural institutions. Sandwiched between festivals in Toronto and New York, Boston's is the only festival in the country backed by a movie chain, Loews Theatres, although the festival is sponsored by Coca-Cola, The Boston Phoenix, WFNX-FM, the Hotel Meridien, Champagne Piper Heidsieck, Northwest Airlines and WHDH-TV (Channel 7).

This year's Second Annual Piper Heidsieck Award will honor Susan Sarandon for Best Actress and Al Pacino for Best Actor. Both will be in town to collect their awards. The Third Annual Independent Filmmaker Symposium, set for September 24, will address current issues of independent filmmakers and the state of art and specialty films. Retrospectives of the films of Sarandon, Pacino and Charlie Chaplin are planned to coincide with the screenings of about 55 films, including several area premieres, documentaries and shorts.

Some of the splashier titles scheduled include Tim Robbin's first directorial effort "Bob Roberts;" Pacino's vehicle "Glengarry Glen Ross;" "Light Sleeper," starring Sarandon and Willem Dafoe; director Ridley Scott's cut of "Bladerunner;" Billy Crystal's "Mr. Saturday Night," the remake of "Of Mice and Men," starring John Malkovich; Harvey Keitel's gritty crime drama "Reservoir Dogs;" and director Cameron Crowe's ensemble film "Singles."

The two-day Human Rights Watch Film Festival, shown September 23-24, was created by the Human Rights Watch, the leading U.S.-based international human rights monitoring organization. Six films will be shown, including the documentary "Havana," in which Cuban citizens talk about their city; "Laibach: Victory Under the Sun," a documentary about a non-dissident Yugoslavian rock band; the French documentary "Nobody's Child," which is a profile of an Irish woman who founded an orphanage and school for Vietnamese children; and "Off Limits," a French documentary about three stories of torture and survival.

As in the past, filmmakers and actors are expected to be on hand to present their films. So far this year, Sarandon, Pacino, Crowe, and Robbins are definite. Among others expected are Cambridge filmmaker Errol Morris, who directed "A Brief History of Time;" German actress Marianne Saegbrecht, star of "Martha and I;" and Gary Sinise, the director and star of "Of Mice and Men."

There will be a benefit screening of "Glengarry Glen Ross" for the Institute of Contemporary Art on September 16. For information regarding the screening or accompanying reception, at which Pacino will receive his Piper Heidsieck Award, call the ICA at (617) 266-5152. Sarandon is to receive her award before a screening of "Light Sleeper" at the Loews Cheri. Tickets may be obtained in advance for this event by calling Ticketmaster at (617) 931-2000 or the day of the event at the Cheri.

Tickets may also be purchased in advance through ticketmaster for "Bladerunner," or at the Nickelodeon the day it is screened. But try to plan ahead, this movie will likely attract a lot of attention. For information concerning the 3rd Annual Independent Filmmakers Symposium, contact the TSAI Performance Center at Boston University at (617) 353-TSAI. Some of the speakers include Nick Gomez, a Somerville writer/director whose "Laws of Gravity" will be shown in the Festival; Richard Abromowitz of RKO Pictures; actress Sofia Coppola from "Inside Monkey Zetterland;" Mark Diamond, director of the Boston Film Festival; and Linda Peterson Warren, director of the Massachusetts Film Office.

Most films will be screened at Loews Copley Place, with special events located at other Loews cinemas in Boston. Tickets for all films are $7, though films in the retrospectives are $4 each. The festival will also hold several Short Feature Marathons on September 22 and 23.

Keep in mind that the festival attracts about 12,000 people, so if you want to see a showy flick, try to buy your tickets early in the day. For updates and information, call (617) 266-2533.

GROWING UP IS HARD TO DO

Just ask Jessica. At 13, she's had some tough breaks. She needs a long term foster home where she can begin to dream about the future. Jessica would do best in a strong family where limits are set and she can get lots of attention.

Can you make a commitment to help Jessica grow up? If you think you can, attend an INFORMATIONAL MEETING on TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, at 6:30 p.m. Or call to learn what you can do.

Are you a wimp? Do you find it difficult to say "No" to strangers? Would a criminal size you up as a "good" victim?

To learn the answers to these questions and more, make it a point to attend Lynnfield Community Church on Thursday, September 10, at 7:30 p.m. when their Lecture Series begin, with, "How to Be Interviewed For Crime."

Presented by Samantha Koumanelis, Founder and Director of Street Smarts, of Peabody, this fast-paced and informative program will show women how to recognize, avoid and eliminate danger at home, on the street and in the workplace. Admission is $3 and for women only.

Ms. Koumanelis will also present a three-week workshop beginning September 15 to

Ms. Koumanelis is author of "More Power To You - The Take Charge, Do it Yourself, Personal Protection Handbook for Women" and a former undercover investigator with a Black Belt in Karate. Linden Tree kept busy

The Linden Tree Coffeehouse announces its eighth season of monthly acoustic folk music concerts. The season will open on Saturday, September 12 with Diane Taraz and Elijah Wald in the social hall of Wakefield's Unitarian-Universalist Church, 326 Main St. (across from the Post Office).

Diane Taraz was raised in Western Massachusetts and now lives in the Boston area where she has been performing for 14 years, both solo and with her band. She has recently won three songwriting contests and her songs Full Moon Tonight and Raisin Pie are frequently requested on Boston radio stations WERS and WUMB. Taraz is an exceptionally talented writer and gifted singer with imaginative guitar arrangements.

Elijah Wald plays folk, blues and African songs. He began playing guitar after seeing his first Pete Seeger concert at age seven. His working repertoire of about eight hundred songs include country blues, city blues, cowboy songs, '50s rock 'n' roll, and Swahili pop. He has toured India for the United States Institute for Cultural Affairs, giving a one evening history of American music. When not traveling, he lives in the Boston area hosting an evening of folk roots music every week in Cambridge, writing about American and world music for the Boston Globe, and making all his own shirts.

The Linden Tree Coffeehouse will begin at 8 p.m. with its popular open mike set. Those who wish to perform are encouraged to call 246-2836 to register.
